Daphne was not so chaste as she was changing

John Dowland (c.1563-1626)

Daphne was not so chaste as she was changing,
Soon begun Love with hate estranging:
He that to-day triumphs with favours graced,
Soon be-gun Love with hate estranging.

Daphne was not so chaste as she was changing,
Yet is thy beauty fain'd, and ev'ry one desires,
Beautie can want no grace by true love viewed,
Yet is thy beautie fainde, and ev'ry one desires.

Yet is thy beautie fainde, and ev'ry one desires,
Daphne was not so chaste as she was changing,
Beautie can want no grace by true love viewed,
Fancie by lookes is still renued.

Fancie by lookes is still renued:
Fancie by lookes is still renued:
But if that beautie were of one consent with love,
Love should live free, and true pleasure prove.

Source: John Dowland, The Third and Last Booke of Songs or Aires (London, 1603), no.4.

Lute 14.2: e (= f♯)
I.15.2: a'

© David Fraser 2008, distributed according to the terms of the CPDL Licence (www.cpdl.org)