Matthew Kingston (1857-1930) was born in Birmingham, England, and trained at Lichfield Cathedral. He was organist of the Richmond Hill Congregational Church, Bournemouth; Bury St. Edmunds Parish Church; Romford Parish Church; St. Mary's, Shortlands; and St. Luke's, Hampstead. He also served as borough organist of Bournemouth. He died in London. His compositions include anthems, service music, and a few part-songs and songs.

What look hath she,
What majestie,
That must so high approve her?
What graces move
That I so love,
That I so greatly love her?

No majestie
But Truth hath She;
Thoughts sweet and gracious move her;
That straight approve
My heart to love,
And all my life to love her!
