Toss not my soul

John Dowland
(1563-1626)

Toss not my soul,
O Love, twixt thy hope and fear,
Take me, Assurance, to thy blissful hold,

Toss not my soul,
O Love, twixt thy hope and fear,
Show me some ground where I may firmly
Or thou, Despair, unto thy darkest

Toss not my soul,
O Love, twixt thy hope and fear, twixt thy hope and Take me, Assurance, to thy blissful hold, thy blissful

Show me some ground where I may firmly
Or thou, Despair, unto thy darkest

Stand, or surely fall, I care not which appears,
Each hath full rest, the one in joys en-

Stand, or surely fall, or surely fall, I care not which appears,
Each hath full rest, each hath full rest, the one in joys en-

Stand, or surely fall, or fall, or surely fall, I care not which appears,
Each hath full rest, full rest, each hath full rest, the one in joys en-

Stand, or surely fall, or surely fall, I care not which appears,
Each hath full rest, each hath full rest, the one in joys en-pear, rolled, So one will close me in a certain band, in a pear, So one will close me in a certain band, in a rolled, Th'o-ther, in that he fears no more, is well, fears no

When once of ill the utter-most is known, the When once of ill the utter-most, when once of ill the

The strength of sorrow quite is overthrown.
utter most is known, The strength of sorrow quite is overthrown.
known, The strength of sorrow quite is overthrown.