The music is set in common time, with various key changes indicated by sharps and flats. The lyrics are written below each staff, corresponding to the notes. The vocal parts alternate between soprano and basso continuo, creating a polyphonic texture. The basso continuo part includes a bassoon line and a harpsichord/bassoon line, with bassoon entries marked by a bassoon symbol and harpsichord entries marked by a harpsichord symbol.

Translation

My heart overflows with a goodly theme: I recite my verses to the King. My tongue is the pen of a skillful writer.
You are the fairest of the children of men: grace flows from your lips; therefore God has blessed you for ever.
Strap your sword at your thigh, O most mighty, in your splendour and majesty.
In your majesty ride triumphantly in the cause of truth, humility and righteousness: may your right hand perform awesome deeds.
Your sharp arrows pierce the hearts of the king's enemies; nations fall under you.
Your throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the sceptre of your kingdom is a sceptre of justice.
You love righteousness and hate wickedness; therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of joy above your companions.
Your garments are fragrant with myrrh, aloes, and cassia; from ivory palaces [harps] bring you pleasure.
Kings' daughters are among your ladies of honour: at your right hand stands the queen in gold of Ophir.
Listen, O daughter, consider and pay attention: forget your people and your father's house and the King will desire your beauty. Adore him, for he is your Lord God.
They shall be brought in with gladness and rejoicing; they shall enter into the king's palace.
Your ancestors will be succeeded by your sons; you will make them princes over all the land.
I will cause your name, O Lord, to be remembered throughout all generations. Thus the nations will praise you for ever and ever. Amen.
(Psalm 45, omitting vv.12–14)

Editorial Conventions

The nomenclature of the voice-parts follows the Tudor convention.
The prefatory staves at the start of the piece show the original clef, staff signature, mensuration symbol and first note for each voice.
Editorial accidentals are placed above the notes concerned.
Ligatures are denoted by the sign .
Repeat signs in the underlay have been expanded using italicised text.
The lost sections of the Tenor part have been reconstructed by the editor and are shown in small notation.

Notes on the Readings of the Source

There are few variants of substance between the three sources; all transmit accurate texts. This extends to the underlay, over which all sources agree: there is just one text repetition in the Second Bass that is present in A but absent in B, at bar 60; B's reading has been preferred.

In each section below the references are listed by source. Each reference to a bar or group of bars is separated by an oblique stroke. Within these references multiple readings in the same voice are separated by a comma and readings in different voices by a semicolon. The order within each entry is: (1) bar number(s); (2) voice; (3) reading of the source (with any subsequent bar numbers in brackets). Pitches are in capital letters, preceded by a number where necessary, e.g. ²A = second note A in the bar. Pitches quoted are those of the edition.
